AMERICAN LEGION NOTES

The Fourth National convention of the American Legion which met in New Orleans, La., October 16-20, 1922, was a great convention. The outstanding feature of the convention was the careful and thorough preparations made to render service during the coming year. The reports of the committees and national officers were thoughtful anl exhaustive, and laid the foundation for the constructive work to which the legion has dedicated itself in the present year In the future as in the past the legion will make the welfare of the disabled veteran its first care and

"There are four outstanding principles upon which we, the American Legion, rest. They are hospitalization, rehabilitaion, adjusted compensation and Americanism. It is all summed up in that one term, the Americanism of the legion.

"By buddies, I accept the honor you have conferred upon me. I give you my hand. I am grateful.

"To the accomplishment of the things we set out to do, I pledge to you the best energies of my manhood and my sacred honor."

The foregoing statement from the speech of acceptance of Alvin M. Owsley as the gentleman who represums up the spirit which pervaded the convention.

Our department is delighted over the election of Colonel Owsley as national commander. Of the numerous candidates proposed he was our choice from the beginning. We believe the legion is in safe hands for 1923. You will remember Colonel Owsley as the gentlemen who repre-

The convention voted to hold the fifth annual convention in San Francisco, California, October 15-19, 1923, inclusive.

From time to time we hope to tell you something of the workings of the convention in these notes.
